HOFFA SAYS WIFE OWNS FIRMS

Expect Red Sub Base in Syria

Arabs in Last Resort Conference

By UNITED PRESS

Official quarters in London said today there was mounting evidence the Soviet Union intends to establish a submarine base in the Middle East as a follow up to its victory in Syria.

A Soviet submarine base in Syria, or one controlled by Russia, would outflank the Baghdad Pact powers, lessen the effectiveness of the U. S. 6th Fleet and would change the strategic picture in the Mediterranean.

The reports coincided with growing fears in the Arab world itself that the Soviets were becoming too well entrenched. Mideast reports said Syrian President Shukri el Kuwatly was being approached for a "last resort" Arab conference to try and halt the Soviet advance.

Unconfirmed rumors circulating in Beirut, Lebanon, said the Soviet was pouring in technicians and civilians to speed the "takeover" of Syria. There was no confirmation of these reports in official quarters.

In Cairo the government newspaper Al Gomhouria reported Syrian officers had trained in Poland to operate two Russian submarines being turned over to Syria by the Soviet Union under their arms pact deal.

Egypt recently received three submarines from the Soviets, but Al Gomhouria noted this was not the same type of agreement reached in Moscow by Syrian Defense Minister Khaled Elazm.

NATO Allies To Meet

United Press diplomatic correspondent K. C. Thaler reported in London that the NATO pact allies were expected to confer in Paris on this new threat to NATO and the Baghdad nations — Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Britain and Pakistan.

British and American diplomats already were conferring on the new threat, but Washington dispatches indicated the administration had come to the reluctant conclusion it could do nothing because the Eisenhower Doctrine is not applicable in the Syrian case.

The Cairo press meanwhile used a surprisingly mild tone toward the Western powers in urging them to adopt a "conciliatory attitude" toward the Syrian-American crisis.

The Cairo newspapers also hinted that the split between Jordan and Egypt would end soon and that Jordan would reopen its Cairo embassy on Sept. 2. The embassy was closed after Jordan accused Egypt of plotting political assassinations in Amman.

Kuwatly already was in Egypt where he conferred with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Some sources said he appealed to Nasser to exert his influence with the ruling leftist military clique in SHASTA FINALLY MAKES IT—After a 19-day delay due to unfavorable weather conditions, Shasta, the 12th atomic detonation of the 1957 nuclear series, finally was detonated Sunday. The fire ball was photographed at the Nevada test site 13 miles away. The nuclear device was set off from a 500-foot tower.

Union Calls Steel Increase Exorbitant

WASHINGTON (UP) — A United Steelworkers official charged today that the steel industry is trying to make his union the "scapegoat" for "exorbitant" steel price increases.

Otis Brubaker, the union's research director, told the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee that "steel price increases in the post World War II period have been exorbitant in relation to increased costs."

"By constant repetition of the theory that price increases have been 'forced' by labor unions, corporate management has succeeded in turning attention away from the obvious connection between rising prices and rising profits," the union official said.

"Of key importance in this deliberate strategy is placing before the public a scapegoat—organized labor."

Hearings Resumed

Brubaker was the main witness as the subcommittee, headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), resumed hearings on the causes of recent price increases in the steel industry and so-called "administered" prices in steel and other industries.

"Administered prices" are those set by a company or industry without direct relationship to supply and demand.

In response to a question from Kefauver, Brubaker said there is "no question" but that the present inflation is an "administered inflation" partly resulting from steel cost hikes.

The union research director said the July, 1957, wage increase in the steel industry of 15.5 cents an hour, or 5.9 per cent, could have

Area Motorist's Car Struck in Uniontown Crash

A Belle Vernon motorist was one of three drivers involved in a collision on a Uniontown street yesterday.

Police said a total of $875 damage resulted in the three-car mishap when one driver failed to regard a traffic signal at the intersection of Pittsburgh and Penn streets.

Reports said a car driven by R. M. Hunter, 35, of R. D., Uniontown, was traveling south on Pittsburgh St. and failed to heed a traffic light and crashed into a car operated by Mrs. Rheba Howard, 25, of Uniontown.

Mrs. Howard's car then careened into a vehicle driven by Bernard Pirchesky, 34, of 301 Belmont St., Belle Vernon.

Report Stolen Purses in Park

Mrs. Joseph Schmid, of Roscoe, reported to police yesterday that someone stole two purses from her car while it was parked at Monessen City Park.

One purse containing $18 belonged to Doris Dainty, of Roscoe, and the other with approximately $3 belonged to Barbara Nahar, of Charleroi. Important identification cards were also taken.

State Police Break Up Levittown Crowd Outside Negro Home

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Club-swinging state troopers Monday night charged into a crowd of more than 350 persons outside the home of the first Negro family to move into this suburban Philadelphia community.

Three persons were injured before the mob was dispersed.

Two persons injured in the melee were identified as Patricia Mulhern, 28, and Donald Walker. A third unidentified woman about 55 years old was also injured.

Miss Mulhern, who weighs 110 pounds, said a state trooper struck her on the legs and back with a club. She said later she would talk with her attorney to consider bringing charges of police brutality. She was treated for shock and minor injuries at Lower Bucks County Hospital.

The crowd, which assembled about 100 yards from the ranch-type home of William Meyers, was the seventh demonstration since last Tuesday when the home was placed under police guard.

Ordered Home

State Police Lt. M. D. Wickert, in charge of the troopers, warned the milling demonstrators over a loud speaker, "Somebody threw a stone at one of my troopers, I will give you just ten minutes to disperse and go to your homes."

When the deadline had arrived, Wickert gave orders which sent the club-swinging troopers into the crowd forcing it about two blocks away from the Meyer's home.

Meyers told newsmen at a conference in his home he would remain in the community unless the pressure "becomes unbearable."

The college - educated Meyers, who is a $5,000-a-year refrigeration firm employe, added, "I will try to be a good neighbor, I only ask that they, the other residents be a good neighbor too."

He said, however, "if the pressure becomes unbearable and my wife says she can't take any more, then I'll move."

The 34-year old Meyers, his wife, Daisy, 32, and their three children, originally entered the house last Tuesday, prompting a series of disturbances which resulted in the arrest of about six demonstrators. Two windows were smashed at that time and the family was escorted from the home by police.

Meyers, his wife, a former school teacher, and one daughter, re-entered the ranch house early Monday under police guard while only a few residents were walking about the area.

Meyers told reporters his move into the previously all-white community was not backed by any group. "It was purely my own idea," he said, "my wife and I always wanted a ranch house. I talked to members of a human relations committee in the community before buying the house. I didn't expect so much trouble."

Bloom to Stump Area to Sound Out Sentiment

HARRISBURG (UP)—Republican State GOP Chairman George I. Bloom, said today he will stump six western Pennsylvania counties this week to sound out grass roots sentiment among Republicans.

Bloom, touring the state to stir up support for GOP candidates at the November county and municipal elections, said he was getting "encouraging reports."

"The people generally are sick and tired of the mess made by the Leader administration in Harrisburg and want to vote Republican when we present top-notch candidates and a constructive and fighting program," Bloom said.

The Republican leader said he would confer with Forest, Elk and Cameron County GOP chiefs tomorrow and address the Clarion County Republican Picnic, Cook's Forest, tomorrow night. Thursday, Bloom addresses the Bradford County Republican Picnic at Wysox.

Conferences with GOP leader of Washington, Fayette, Greene and Westmoreland counties are slated for Friday Washington, Pa. with an address at the Fayette County GOP picnic Saturday at Buena Vista.

Co. D Freeze On Enlistments

Monessen Co. D., 110th Regiment, 28th Infantry Division of the Pennsylvania National Guard, today announced that it has received orders to "freeze" all enlistments until further notice.

The order was issued by Col. Boyd Philipi, regimental commander. No reason was given for the order.

Co. D's table of organization calls for 127 enlisted men and five officers. The unit at present has 83 enlisted men and five officers.

Despite the "freeze", 1st Sgt William Cousins said applications for enlistment will still be taken. Applicants will be placed on the waiting list, he stated.

Bicycle Hit by Car; Rider Is Uninjured

An unidentified girl apparently escaped injury when the bicycle she was riding struck a car driven by Eino Kipela, of 1151 Dennis Ave., Monessen, at the intersection of South 14th St. and Maple Ave., police reported today.

Kipela said the girl ran into a rear fender. He said he stopped and offered assistance but the girl declined, saying she was not hurt.

Local Motorist In Area Accident

An accident on a Monongahela street over the weekend involved a Monessen motorists, Monongahela police reported yesterday afternoon.

Reports said a car operated by George Torham, 40, of Van Voorhis, traveling west on East Main St., swerved to the left of the center of the street and struck a car driven by Carl Leinberger, Jr., of 209 Lenawee Ave., Monessen, which was traveling east.

Car Demolished in Route 71 Accident

A Pittsburgh district man escaped injury but his car was completely demolished when he failed to negotiate a sharp curve on Route 71 two miles east of Belle Vernon last night and went over an embankment.

Police listed the driver as Charles Strong, of Homewood.

Voting Under Way For Fund Board

Three members are to be elected to the board of directors of the Monessen Community Fund for three-year terms.

Candidates include William Huston, Robert Kramer, Daniel Myshin, Ralph Obley and Margaret Schilling.

The voting will take place tomorrow and Thursday at the Chamber of Commerce offices at 335 Schoonmaker Ave.

Fires in Rostraver And Belle Vernon

Monessen district fire companies answered two alarms yesterday afternoon and this morning.

Webster firemen were summoned to extinguish a field fire at Iron City Hill yesterday about 1 p. m. and at 8:15 this morning Belle Vernon and North Belle Vernon were called when a secondary electrical line caught fire on a utility pole located near 517 Broad Ave., Belle Vernon.

No serious damage resulted from either fire.

Milk Cut Off To New York on Beck's Orders

NEW YORK (UP) — A Teamsters' strike approved by union chief Dave Beck today cut off all but 30 per cent of the milk going to 12 million consumers in the New York metropolitan area.

About 950 members of Teamsters Local 770 walked off their jobs Monday night. The truck drivers normally carry 70 per cent of the bulk milk sent in from farms for processing and distribution to dealers.

Drivers of several other locals did not join in the strike. Local 770 agreed to deliver emergency milk supplies for hospitals and other institutions.

Harold Felix, New York city labor commissioner, said consumers would not feel the pinch of the strike until sometime Wednesday.

Late Monday night, union and dairy Transport Association negotiators agreed to resume talks Wednesday morning with federal, state and city mediators

The walkout originally had been set for last Friday at midnight. Teamsters Vice President Thomas Hickey said the strike was approved by union President Dave Beck.

Hickey said wages are the key issue. The union demanded an 86½ cent an hour package increase over a three-year period. The association offered a 50 - cent boost over four years.

Panepinto Case Postponed Until Next Month

The City of Monessen has been granted a postponement in the case involving the City and Philip Panepinto, whom the City fired as a policeman last July.

Originally scheduled for Thursday, the case has now been set for Wednesday, Sept. 11.

The City asked the Westmoreland County Courts to grant the postponement because "several" of its witnesses are on vacation and would not be available for Thursday's hearing.

Panepinto was dismissed from the force after a hearing before City Council on July 12 on two charges — failure to make hourly reports to the station and "sleeping on duty."

He made a partial denial of the first charge and complete denial of the second charge.

He appealed to the courts asking for reinstatement on the grounds that he "has suffered an injustice."

Top Teamsters Official Denies Business Link

WASHINGTON (UP)—James R. Hoffa, crown prince of the Teamsters Union, told the Senate Rackets Committee today that his wife owned companies which leased equipment to truckers with labor trouble.

Hoffa said under questioning that the wife of Bert Brennan, another Teamsters official who is associated with Hoffa, also held part of the stock.

He said the first president of one of the firms was James Wrape, a St. Louis attorney for a trucking company which rented Mrs. Hoffa's trucks.

The stocky, cocky heir apparent to the Teamster presidency insisted, however, "I did not set up, nor did I run, nor have the stock of Test Fleet," the business owned by Mrs. Hoffa and Mrs. Brennan.

He said Test Fleet did not hire drivers but leased trucks to a Flint, Mich., firm called Commercial Carriers, which hauled automobiles from factory to dealer. Commercial Carriers hired the drivers under a standard area-wide contract with the Teamsters Union, he said.

Queried on Dio

The committee called Hoffa for questioning about many things, including charges that he enlisted hoodlum Johnny Dio to help set up seven phony locals with a view to seizing control of all Teamsters in New York City.

The stocky crown prince of Teamsters, accused of teaming with New York hoodlums and racketeers on his way toward the top, began his testimony with a brief statement that he would answer some questions to the best of his recollection.

But he reserved the right "within reason" to amend or revise his answers in the record. He added:

"I further reserve the right to refuse to answer any questions which relate to matters outside the scope of the committee's authority or which do not relate to its proper legislative purpose or which are not pertinent to the inquiry."

Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), issuing what he called a "tentative ruling" on Hoffa's preliminary statement, remarked that Hoffa's best recollection was the best that the committee can expect "unless we can refresh your memory."

McClellan said the committee transcript will, of course, be available to Hoffa. But the chairman said sworn testimony can't.

As to Hoffa's warning that he might challenge the committee's jurisdiction, McClellan told Hoffa he would have to use "your own judgment and the advice of your counsel on that" if the committee should rule that a question was pertinent and should be answered

Bankruptcy Filed Against Local Firm

Bankruptcy papers have been filed against William S. Jones, trading as Jones Frosted Foods at 848 Donner Ave., Monessen.

Attorney Everett Sorber, of Greensburg, is the receiver in the bankruptcy and William Markus, of Pittsburgh, is attorney for the receiver.

The firm started in business here over 10 years ago.

Pilots Nosedive To Death to Miss German Factory

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—Two veteran Army pilots decorated for bravery in World War II and Korea nosedived to death Monday rather than crash into a factory full of workers, the U.S. Army said.

The Army identified the fliers as Capt. Dewey H. Smith, 38, of Miami, Fla. and Capt. James W. Hancock, 43, of Atlanta, Ga.

Both men were career Army aviation officers and did not have permanent street addresses in the United States, the Army said.

Both had flown in World War II and in the Korean war, and held Distinguished Flying Crosses and Air Medals.

Both were married and each had two children.

They died Monday when one engine of their twin-engine L23 cut out on takeoff from an Army airstrip at Bonames on the outskirts of Frankfurt. Unable to gain altitude over the crowded suburban area, they nosedived the plane into a concrete courtyard rather than smash into a shoe-factory where some 300 people were at work.

Such German newspapers as the Frankfurter Abendpost, usually highly critical of Americans, gave the story wide play under such headlines as "pilots sacrifice their lives for us."

Dynamite Causes Plane Explosion, CAB Has Ruled

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board has ruled dynamite caused the explosion which ripped a 28-foot hole in a Western Airliner and blew former Pittsburgh district jeweler Saul F. Binstock to his death.

The FBI said it was continuing its investigation to determine if Binstock, who took out two maximum airline insurance policies before the flight, detonated the blast while in the plane's washroom. Agents refused to comment further until their investigation was complete.

The CAB spokesman said the board was concerned only with finding the "probable cause" of the accident. Laboratory experts, he said, were satisfied dynamite was to blame.

The FBI, the CAB official added, would have to determine if any criminal action would be taken.

Legal Snarl Over Nomination Holding Up Stieska Campaign

Whether or not Monessen has a campaign for local offices this fall may depend on the willingness of potential Republican candidates to take a chance and ask for votes while their legal status remains in doubt.

Chief among the potential candidates is John R. Stieska, who is the GOP nominee for mayor according to the Westmoreland County courts, which held that he won the nomination on write-in votes over Mayor Hugo J. Parente.

Parente is the Democratic nominee for a fourth term.

But Parente is challenging Stieska's status by an appeal from the county court rulings to the state Supreme Court.

The high court is now in a long summer recess which does not end until Sept. 30.

Although it is understood the court will make the local case one of the first on its agenda, Stieska and his supporters believe that it is to late to plan an effective campaign. The general election is on Nov. 5 this year.

Stieska indicated yesterday that he is trying to make up his mind whether to begin a campaign now on the assumption that the Supreme Court will uphold his claim to the Republican nomination

"I don't exactly know what to do," he told The Daily Independent. "I would like very much to have another chance, and I am being urged strongly by my friends to run. But I would hate to spend the time and money and have my efforts wasted."

Some county leaders of the GOP, anxious to have a ticket in the field in Monessen, one of the largest cities of the county, are reported to be seeking ways of underwriting Stieska's expenses should Parente win the Supreme Court test.

In somewhat the same position are some other local Democrats who lost their own party nominations in the primary last May but who may have won Republican nominations on write-in votes. No registered Republicans were filed for local offices in the May primary, thus putting the party designations up for grabs among Democrats.

However, Stieska was the only Democrat defeated in his own primary who went to bat in the courts to secure his right to the Republican nomination.

There is a difference of opinion among lawyers who have studied the unusual case as to whether the outcome of the Stieska-Parente legal controversy would have a bearing on the other contests. Some think it would; some think it wouldn't.

At stake are two nominations for city council and the nomination for city treasurer. Using the interpretation of the county court in the Stieska - Parente case,

Air Force Doctor Stays Aloft; Tells of Strange Experiences

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP) — An Air Force balloonist investigating the fringes of outer space remained aloft today when a fresh wind shift gave his flight new life.

Maj. David G. Simons, 35, an Air Force doctor, had soared to record heights on a scheduled 24-hour flight in the stratosphere. Early today officials ordered him to begin descending ahead of schedule because a large bank of cumulus clouds appeared to be shaping up to the west of his planned landing area.

However, a wind shift lofted the balloon northeastward about 50 miles from the Sisseton, S.D. area to Breckenridge, Minn. Simons' orders then were changed.

"Because of the opportunity to complete extra tests and experiments," a spokesman said, "Major Simons has been allowed to remain up."

Officials were uncertain as to just when Simons would begin his descent.

"There is still a weather factor involved," he said."

Simons had begun his descent when the wind shifted.

Simons had spent a busy night, according to reports from him as relayed by Col. John W. McCurdy of the Air Force.

The pilot took a few catnaps only, totaling an hour. He was awake before sunrise, and thrilled to see the vast eastern sky with its brilliant morning colors. Because he was so high, McCurdy said, Simons saw the sunrise an hour before it opened to watchers on the earth below.

Simons, who hit a record altitude of more than 100,000 feet, or about 19 miles, shortly after he took off at mid-morning Monday, probably was prevented from trying to better that mark this morning.

Turbulence from a severe thunderstorm below Simons' balloon dragged him down to 68,000 feet as he drifted over Sisseton, S.D., after dawn.

He dropped the last 100 of his 300 pounds of ballast at that point and began ascending again, reaching 80,000 feet by 7:15 a.m. E.D.T. He sought to reach a new record altitude.

"It was really spectacular to see lightning from above," Simons radioed ground observers in describing the storm. He said he was about 30,000 feet over the storm at the time.

The balloon was launched from the 450-foot deep pit to prevent surface winds from damaging it during takeoff.

An Air Force spokesman said Simons is "real excited about the

Costello Suspect Is Jailed

NEW YORK (UP)—A former heavyweight boxer surrendered Monday and was charged with attempted murder in the bungled attempt to assassinate former rackets czar Frank Costello.

Vincent (The Chin) Gigante, 29, a small - time gambler with a 12 - year criminal record, was booked late Monday night, 10 hours after he walked into the West 54th Street police station with his lawyer and casually surrendered.

Gigante, married and a father of four, had been sought since shortly after May 2, the day a lone gunman ambushed Costello as he entered the lobby of his apartment building and fired one shot, which creased the scalp of the 66-year-old underworld figure.

Costello 'Cooperative'

Costello and five other persons were confronted with Gigante Monday, but police would not say whether he had been identified as the pot-bellied, waddling gunman. Significantly, however, they said Costello had been "very cooperative" during a brief questioning period. Heretofore, Costello has been reluctant to discuss the attempt on his life. He has said he had no idea who the gunman was or what the motive was behind the shooting. Five days after the assassination attempt Costello received a 30-day jail sentence for refusing to answer questions of a grand jury investigating the shooting.

Gigante, who described himself as a laborer, was regarded as a key suspect in the shooting because his description answered that of the gunman who came within an inch of killing Costello.

Authorities refused to identify the others brought to the police station and questioned Monday in connection with the shooting.

Police have theorized that the gunman may have been hired by rival gambling interests or by a gang seeking to depose Costello as the nation's reputed rackets king.

But the veteran gambler has insisted he is retired and has no enemies.

flight and very fascinated with everything he's seeing."

During the night, Simons made extensive readings on the aurora borealis (northern lights), star sightings, and a sighting on the moon.

The doctor's vision at that altitude is not hampered by haze and smoke which restricts vision closer to the ground.

The spokesman said they have been trying to get more descriptive reports from Simons since his ascent, but he has been too busy with his stratospheric activities to give much more than terse scientific reports.

At sunset, however, Simons was so impressed with the beauty surrounding him that he became more expansive and radioed that the sky was "a dark, purplish black, a color I have not seen before and can't really describe."

"North of me, the color has an even more violent purple tinge," the Air Force scientist reported.

Sunset came hours later for Simons than it did at ground level because the sun's rays were visible for a longer period.

Simons said that at midnight, e.d.t., the temperature inside his gondola was 74 despite a frigid 64 degrees below zero outside.

"He is operating the flight at peak efficiency and authorities have reached a decision to leave him up in the balloon overnight," the Air Force spokesman said.

Simons said he was in very good spirits, his physical efficiency was high and he was comfortable.

New Castle Man Accident Victim

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (UP)—Lorenzo Grove, New Castle, was killed Monday when he was thrown to the highway while attempting to stop his parked truck from drifting over an embankment.

According to police, Grove had stopped to make repairs and blocked the wheels of the vehicles with stones. When he removed the blocks to resume his trip, the truck started moving toward the five-foot drop.

Grove leaped to the side of the cab in an effort to stop the vehicle and was thrown to his death as the truck dropped over the grade.

FLIES HOME TO FIGHT FOR AID—Back in Washington after a 10-day vacation at his Duck island retreat in Lake Ontario, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles (left) is met by Undersecretary of State Christian Herter. President Eisenhower sent Dulles to Capitol Hill to make an 11th-hour plea for more foreign aid funds. Dulles said, "I don't feel good" about congressional cuts.

Foreign Aid Debate Behind Closed Doors

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower's Republican supporters in the Senate led a serious bid today to offset some of the heavy House cuts in foreign aid funds.

But they found the Senate Appropriations Committee, which was to get down to work today on the aid money bill behind closed doors, sharply divided. Some members were flatly opposed to any increases in the $2,524,760,000 in new funds voted by the House.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.), a member of the appropriations committee, said "I hope that the President's recommendations will permit certainly something more than three billion dollars, and I will vote for the full amount" of the $3,367,000,000 previously authorized by Congress.

Eisenhower has asked for the full $3,367,000,000 as the minimum needed for the security of this country and its free world allies. But the House, in writing the check for actual funds for the coming year, cut the figure by more than 800 million dollars.

Eisenhower sent Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other top officials before the committee Monday with their strongest pleas to date for restoration of the House cut.

How much progress they made was in doubt. Some Republicans were optimistic, and confident some committee Democrats will back their move for a figure not too far from the authorized ceiling.

Stieska

Stephen Sinchak and William Snyder would be the GOP nominees for council and Dr. G. L. Trilli for treasurer.

The legal issue is whether write-in votes cast for a candidate under all versions of his name should be counted or whether only those votes should be counted in which the candidate's full name was properly spelled.

In ruling for Stieska, the county court used the broader interpretation and counted all the votes. Parente's attorneys claim that only the properly spelled-out names should be counted. On the latter basis, Parente would win the Republican as well as the Democratic nomination.

OBITUARIES

THOMAS W. BERG

Services were held this afternoon for Thomas W. Berg, 76, of Stahlstown, R. D. 1, who died at his home on Saturday.

He was survived by four sons, William, of Belle Vernon, R. D. 1; Dean and John, both of Stahlstown R D. 1, and Leland, of Stahlstown; one sister, Mrs. Bowman, of Champion. Four grandchildren and four great grandchildren also survive.

Burial was in Stahlstown Cemetery.

MRS. ROSA BRAXTON

Mrs. Rosa Z. Braxton, of 1124 Walnut St., McKeesport, a former North Belle Vernon resident, died Sunday at her home after a long illness.

She lived in Belle Vernon 37 years before moving to McKeesport three years ago. She is a member of the Metropolitan Baptist Church in Charleroi.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Maye Smith, with whom she resided and Mrs. Ada M. Payne, of Monessen; one son, Clinton C. Braxton, of New York; three brothers, Daniel, of Longacre, W. The Rev. Maxie Smith will officiate at the service and burial will be in Belle Vernon cemetery.

Coal Rate Hearings Open Today; Protest Against Railroads

HARRISBURG, (UP) — Final argument opened today on a complaint that Clearfield district bituminous mines are at a competitive disadvantage under present rail freight rates on coal shipments to eastern markets.

The Public Utility Commission scheduled the oral argument in its main hearing room.

The protest is directed against coal - carrying railroads by the Eastern Bituminous Coal Association, Altoona, in behalf of mines comprising the district covering Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Centre, Clearfield, Huntingdon and Indiana counties.

The association seeks lower base rates on intra-state shipments to help offset what it termed "a prejudicial" and "unrealistically low" differential on interstate freight rates for longer hauls from the Westmoreland District and the Fairmont District of West Virginia to eastern destinations.

Chief soft coal haulers, the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads, oppose any reductions in the base rates.

In a decision last year, the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled out any interstate rail rate changes in dismissing an association complaint that a 25-cents-per-gross-ton differential over the base intrastate rates should be increased to avoid ruinous competition.

The ICC left the differential undisturbed following a series of joint hearings in Washington with the Pennsylvania PUC.

Also appearing at the argument was the Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators Association, Pittsburgh, which filed a protest against the railroads to protest its Westmoreland District members located in Allegheny, Fayette, Greene, Washington and Westmoreland counties.

The association said its position was that the base intrastate rates are "unjust and unreasonable" to whatever extent they may so be found by the PUC. The association also denied that Westmoreland members get preferential rate treatment over competing Clearfield District shippers on interstate hauls through West Virginia.

been "absorbed entirely out of the 1957 productivity increase of 5 per cent." Instead, the industry raised prices $6 a ton.

Total employment costs in the industry are approximately 35 per cent of sales, he said. "The impact of a 5.9 per cent wage increase is therefore only 2.1 per cent ... with this sizable productivity increase, unit costs show no increase at all but instead a decline," Brubaker said.

McDonald Absent

Brubaker said steel increases have "contributed substantially" to the nation's present inflation.

David J. McDonald, president of the union and vice-president of the AFL-CIO was unable to appear as scheduled.

Brubaker read a statement McDonald prepared saying the union "resents the repeated charges made in recent years by certain industrial leaders that our union has fostered inflation."

"We do not like inflation," McDonald said. "It is our members and the other millions of AFL-CIO members as well as other consumers who are forced to pay the higher prices."

McDonald added that "if the steel industry chooses to boost prices despite the increases in productivity, it owes the nation an explanation."

Police Puzzled By Causes of Fractured Skulls

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)— Perplexed police tried today to figure out how and why two persons apparently received fractured skulls while sleeping.

The second case of its kind was disclosed Monday. Police said Hope Leverne Brown, 14, awoke Saturday morning with a fractured skull but was unaware of having been beaten.

The first case occurred last July 23 when Mrs. Neil Keen, 29-year-old wife of a private investigator, awoke in her bedroom with a fractured skull. Neither did she recall an attack.

Officers said the cases are disturbingly similar. Doors and windows in both homes were locked. The attacks occurred in the same general neighborhood. Neither of the victims was molested sexually and nothing was missing from either home.

Officers said Miss Brown apparently was attacked as she slept on a sofa in the garage apartment of her older sister, Mrs. Faith Holton, sometime early Saturday morning.

Three District Youths Granted Elks Scholarships

The Pennsylvania Elks, meeting in Pittsburgh for ther 51st annual convention, today announced that three district persons are among the 36 state high school boys and girls who will receive student aid scholarships.

Carole Young, of New Castle, received a $1,000 scholarship. Most of the remaining received $500 grants toward their education with six awarded special scholarships ranging from $250 to $400.

District winners include Doris Kinder, of Charleroi; Sandra Zimmerman, of Scottdale, and Warren Richards, of Brownsville.

More than 1,500 members of the Pennsylvania BPOE, including three delegates and a state committeeman from Monessen Lodge 773, have assembled for the session which started Sunday and ends tomorrow.

George Pierotti, Ralph Williams and Francis Odbert are the local delegates and Joseph Turney the state committeeman. The affair is being heldd at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel.

Air Force Has Problem

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Air Force conceded today that almost half the young men now beginning pilot training may drop out of flying programs as a result of an increase in the minimum "hitch" from three to five years.

Training officers said "brutal economic facts" made the increased term of service unavoidable.

They said they have an ample backlog of new men willing to serve five years as pilots and losses will be more than offset by gains.

Training officers said the Air Force cannot afford to spend its present average of $158,000 per man to train pilots and let them go after only three years' service. It takes about two years to get a flier fully trained and operating in a combat unit.

The Air Force announced Aug 13 that from now on all aviation cadets, prospective pilots at the Air Force Academy and graduates of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps must sign up for five-year tours if they want to be pilots. If they insist on the minimum three-year hitches for voluntary enlistees, they will get only non-flying duties.

A sample survey, officials said, indicated about 52 per cent of trainees already in flying courses will accept five-year tours. The others will give up flying careers for Air Force ground jobs so they may quit after three years.

The new ruling applies to trainees in pre-flight school and in primary flying courses but not to men who have already reached basic flight training.

Hearing On Strike In Detroit

DETROIT (UP)—Circuit Judge Horace W. Gilmore ordered two unions to show cause today why an injunction should not be issued to halt the strike blocking publication of Detroit's three daily newspapers.

Gilmore ordered a full hearing today after the three newspapers—Detroit News, Detroit Times and Detroit Free Press—filed a petition for the temporary restraining order, or injunction, late Monday.

Named as defendants in the action were the International Mailers Union and its Detroit Local 40, four IMU officials, and Detroit Teamsters Local 372 and two officers.

The strike started at 3 a.m. Saturday when 87 mailers at the News refused to continue overtime work in assembling Sunday feature sections after completing a double shift.

Called 'Inhuman'

The News said another hour's work was necessary because of a machine breakdown, that the order to work was a proper one under the contract covering the Mailers and that refusal to work made the men subject to dismissal.

The IMU, which does not hold the contract for the Mailers but claims to have captured most of the Mailers' membership at all three papers, said the work order was "inhuman" and said dismissal of the 87 men was a "lockout." IMU officials demanded guaranteed reinstatement of the men before a return to work.

In their court petition, the newspapers and their business managers charged the IMU and the Teamsters Local 372 "unlawfully and illegally" combined and conspired with the intent of harassing, interfering and preventing publication by the newspapers.

Teaching Nuns Return to St. Leonard Convent

Nuns of the Order of St. Francis have returned to St. Leonard Roman Catholic Convent on Eighth St. from their Summer retreat at the Motherhouse at Mt. Alvernia in Millvale.

Sister Mary Renita will again serve as principal as well as teach eighth grade students at St. Leonard School. Sister Mary George will teach seventh grade; Sister Mary Renilda, sixth; Sister Mary Adrian, fifth; Sister Mary Agnes, fourth; Sister Mary Ruth Ann, second, and Sister Mary Agnes Clare, first. A lay teacher will teach third grade.

Sister Mary Corita will be housekeeper at the convent.

The following nuns will reside at St. Leonard Convent and teach at St. Sebastian Church in Belle Vernon:

Sister Mary Rosealma, principal and teacher of third grade; Sister Mary Alicia, first, and Sister Mary Virgil, second.

Chiang Kai-shek Ready to Launch Attack on Mainland

By ROBERT BROWN

TAIPEI (UP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek now has the military power to launch a limited attack against Red China at any time, most observers here agreed today.

For Chiang, who retreated to Formosa eight years ago, there have been encouraging signs during the past few weeks.

Reports from Canton say that posters have recently appeared proclaiming "expel Mao Tse-tung" and "welcome President Chiang Kai-shek."

Students in the industrial city of Wuhan, in central China, have been shouting such slogans as "welcome to the Kuomintang (Chiang's own party) to come back quickly."

Could Drop Paratroops

Only last Thursday Peiping radio announced the arrest of a rebel group in northern China.

It is generally agreed that Chiang's Nationalist air force is capable of launching bombing raids or dropping paratroops in Red China—thus touching off a war overnight.

The question is whether the Nationalists have the naval and logistic ability to sustain a full-scale invasion of the China mainland.

The key point is whether Chiang has enough ships and planes to move a major portion of his 600,000-man force across the 100-mile Formosa straits.

Armchair strategists say Red China's three million-man military force would simply open up, let the Nationalists pour in, and then swallow them. But military experts agree it is not that simple.

Expects Support

Chiang personally is convinced that once his troops gain a foothold on the mainland there will be wide support from Chinese there.

He also is counting on desertions from the Red army. Reinforcing this belief is the fact that 14,000 Red prisoners who fought in Korea decided to join the Nationalists on Formosa rather than return to the Communist mainland.

Chiang himself has admitted that he will need American backing (although not U. S. troops) in order to retake the mainland.

The Nationalists are not likely to make a move without American agreement unless they are certain that internal conditions in Red China are right.

Eight years and the tremendous odds against him have made much of the world doubt that Chiang would ever attempt to retake Red China.

But Chiang has made a remarkable comeback from the dark days of 1949 when American aid was cut to a trickle and most of the world was ready to write off Formosa.

Religion Big Problem Facing Public Schools; Pressure Is Mounting

(This is the first of two special reports by the United Press on the growing national controversy over the place of religion in the public schools.)

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP) — The thorniest dilemma facing America's public schools as they prepare for a new fall term is how to handle the "fourth R"—religion.

In hundreds of communities across the nation, school administrators are caught in the middle of steadily mounting pressures from two directions.

On one side are parents, teachers and clergymen who believe that a child's education is incomplete unless it includes some knowledge of the religious beliefs that have helped to shape U.S. history, and in which millions of Americans find the ultimate values and motivations of life.

This faction includes most Catholics and a very large number of Protestants. It apparently constitutes a substantial majority in many communities.

Strong Opposition

On the other side are vigorous dissenters who contend there is no place for religious instruction or observances in a tax-supported school which serves children of many different creeds.

This faction includes most Jews, some Protestants, and virtually all humanists, ethical culturists and militant unbelievers. Although it is often badly outnumbered, it is vocal in its protests and it has a powerful ally on its side—the Supreme Court of the United States.

Acting on an appeal brought by Mrs. Vashti McCollum, an atheist of Champaign, Ill., the court in 1948 outlawed a system which had been widely adopted by public schools to resolve the problem of how to teach religion in a country characterized by a great diversity of religious beliefs.

Given "Released Time"

Under this system, called the "released time" plan, children were released from other studies at certain periods to attend religious classes taught by representatives of various faiths. Each child received instruction in the faith designated by his parents, or, if the parents, chose, spent the "released time" in a study hall.

The court held 8-1 that this plan breached the "wall of separation between church and state" erected by the First Amendment to the Constitution. It said any instruction in sectarian religious doctrine on public school property was illegal—no matter who did the teaching.

Some public schools—"a very small minority" according to the American Council on Education—took the McCollum decision as a mandate to banish all reference to God from their classrooms. These schools consider it their duty to teach "moral and spiritual values" but to ignore the religious convictions which support these values for most Americans.

Ignored Elsewhere

Other school systems chose to ignore the Supreme Court. The state of Virginia, for example, still permits "released time" religious instruction in public school classrooms in 41 counties. At least eight other states, according to a recent survey, allow religious groups to use school property in various ways.

A large majority of public schools, however, have sought to work out a compromise between the limitations imposed by the Supreme Court and the voiced desires of many parents for some sort of "religious" activity in school life.

A nationwide poll of school officials conducted by the American Council on Education indicates that the most popular solution is to provide school activities which are vaguely "religious" in nature, but which are so bereft of any specific doctrinal content that few would call them "sectarian" religion.

Here Are Examples

Examples which turned up frequently in the American Council study include:

Reading passages from the Bible without comment (Old Testament passages are often stipulated if there are Jewish children in the school); "non-denominational" prayers calculated to offend no one; (New York public schools use the fourth stanza of the patriotic hymn "America"); grace before meals; special celebrations of major religious holidays (Christmas is usually linked with Hanukkah, Easter with Passover.)

Campaign Needed To Rescue Courts

THE NEED for a bi-partisan effort to release the common pleas court of Westmoreland County from the control of a self-serving courthouse political machine becomes more apparent by the hour.

The existence of this political machine is, of course, not news. It has been operating with increasing effectiveness for about 20 years, and since it has been generally successful in winning county elections, by hook or crook, we have to assume that a majority of the voters have condoned it. At least, with a few notable exceptions, the machine's candidates have been elected and reelected repeatedly, albeit at times with the aid of some crude cheating at the polls.

But since the machine has gone so far as to nominate for judge three of the most boss-ridden and obligated candidates it could possibly have found, more and more people in both parties are realizing how far things have gone and how necessary it is to call a halt. For if these candidates should win — and the odds are heavily in their favor — Westmoreland County for the next ten years will have a common pleas court with at least three of its four judges unable to call their political souls their own. The county will have a court created by machine politicians to serve their interests, and we can be sure that it will.

* * *

THE ONLY way this calamity can be forestalled, as we see it, is by means of a bi-partisan — or rather un-partisan — campaign on behalf of the three Republican judicial candidates, Messrs. Pershing, Rial and Topper.

These candidates will be supported by thinking people, not just because they are Republicans, nor because they, in every case, represent the individual voter's conception of the ideal judicial candidate.

They will be supported because they represent the only alternative to absolute, ten-year control of the common pleas court by a corrupt political machine And they can be supported with some confidence because each of the gentlemen is a man of good personal reputation.

* * *

BUT THIS fight for decent government and a free court cannot be entrusted solely to regular Republican organization activity, even if Westmoreland County had an aggressive Republican organization, which it hasn't. If that should happen, the cause is lost before the campaign begins.

What must be evolved, in our opinion, is an independent movement whose sole purpose will be to support the anti-machine candidates for judge.

There is every reason to think thousands of independent Democrats are ready to participate in such a movement. Especially since the courthouse machine handed its third judicial nomination to David H. Weiss, of Monessen, and caused Governor Leader to appoint him to a vacancy on the bench, an undercurrent of sentiment has been developing. On all sides one can hear it: "They've gone too far this time. Enough is enough."

But this sentiment can quickly evaporate and become meaningless by election day if it is not given suitable organization and leadership. Politics is a very practical business, and because they master its techniques and work hard at it, many political machines have survived long after their rottenness has been thoroughly apparent. The most venal political machine can beat the best candidates every time if the latter are not effectively supported by people who want nothing from politics but some reasonably respectable government.

* * *

WE HOPE the forces of decency in Westmoreland County are not going to muff this opportunity. We hope they are not going to leave the courts of the county in the hands of a political gang for a whole decade without a desperate effort to release them and give justice under the law a chance to prevail.

But the time grows short for effective action. We urge those people, both Democrats and Republicans, who see the danger as we see it to cast off any timidity that may be keeping them from facing up to the courthouse machine. We urge them to combine their efforts, their voices — yes, and their money, for the machine will have no shortage of funds — and do battle in a common cause.

If this is not done, the next decade may be one of the longest and saddest in the governmental history of Westmoreland County. Any sacrifices of time, energy and money which will prevent that are justified and should be made.

Merry-Go-Round—

FBI Chief Puts Heat On Congress

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — J. Edgar Hoover has been putting the heat on both Houses of Congress to pass the FBI bill to reverse the Supreme Court in the Jencks case. He has almost made it a personal issue as between him and the highest court in the United States.

Mr. Pearson

This is the second time Mr. Hoover has stepped out of his non-political role as an efficient, quiet FBI chief; the previous time having been his public political appearance with Attorney General Brownell in the Harry Dexter White case.

Many Washington observers have wondered why Hoover took this sudden jump into the political arena on the side of Mr. Brownell. As explained by his close friends, here is the answer:

During the war, Hoover had placed agents with every American embassy abroad. They had done a good job. And after the war, Hoover wanted to build up a super-spy organization to operate all over the world.

He had already had some brushes with Gen. William Donovan's OSS, which during the war was in charge of international espionage. So, when President Truman decided to consolidate overseas operations and replace the OSS with the new Central Intelligence Agency, Hoover went to the White House to plead that CIA be put under him.

Truman considered this was too much police power for one man, and limited the FBI generally to the United States. He told Hoover he was doing a good job here at home and to stick to his domestic knitting.

This upset the FBI chief.

Protecting the President

On top of this, Hoover wanted to take over the Secret Service and its job of guarding the President. This was encouraged by Truman's close friend, Gen. Harry Vaughan. Hoover had assigned a special agent to Vaughan's office and investigated certain people Vaughan wanted investigated, which in some cases was playing politics — Democratic politics.

General Vaughan in turn did his best to persuade Truman to use the FBI instead of the Secret Service, and J. Edgar even got the House Appropriations Committee to earmark $25,000 for the FBI to protect the President.

But Truman stopped this cold. He got on the telephone to Vice President Barkley and told him he wanted the FBI kept away from the job of protecting the President. At Truman's request, Barkley blocked the FBI appropriation.

After these two rebuffs, Hoover developed a cold hatred for Harry Truman. From that time on, he never set foot inside Truman's office.

Normally, Hoover is too shrewd to take sides in a political wrangle. But Hoover's friends say he was so bitter against Truman that he abandoned past practice and sat alongside Brownell as they both threw the book at Truman in the Harry Dexter White case.

Lobbyists' "Dog" Days

The "dog days" are supposed to be so languid that not even a yellow dog will budge out of the road. In Washington, however, the dog days are the lobbyists' heyday. This is the season when congressmen are so hell-bent to get out of town they pass almost any legislation.

As a result, the smart lobbyists wait until the last days of Congress and then pull the right wires to stampede their bills through Congress. Here are some special interest bonanzas about to become law.

Bonanza No. 1 — A bill introduced by Congressman John Flynt, Georgia Democrat, which originally would have meant millions to Pan American Airways, was passed by the House just 12 days after being reported out of committee.

Pan American has been trying to get this bill through Congress for several years. It would permit subsidized airlines to reinvest their capital gains from selling airplanes without having such capital gains counted as income which would reduce their government sudsidy.

This year, Rep. Oren Harris of Arkansas, great friend of Pan American Airways, quietly brought the bill out of his committee in the last hectic days of Congress and it was rushed through the House of Representatives. Opponents of Harris managed to take out most of the profits for Pan American before it passed.

Bonanza No. 2 — The airlines are pushing a bill giving them privileged status under the bankruptcy laws. This would permit them to place their airplanes in "equipment trusts" so creditors could not touch them in bankruptcy proceedings.

Transfusion Needed

From Washington—

Why Federal Power Grows

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

President Eisenhower is giving the 48 governors an unprecedented chance to reverse the flow of government to Washington.

A special committee made up of seven federal officials, including three cabinet members and ten governors, will begin work this month to try to do two things:

Mr. Drummond

Agree on those functions which the federal government now is performing and which the states would be ready to take over.

Recommend areas of taxation which the federal government would yield to the states in order to finance these functions.

Difficult Job

This job will be a lot harder than it seems. It is a tough one. It is tough for three reasons.

1. The steady growth of federal services has not come about because Congress was eager to seize activities which the states were performing. It has come about because the nation's voters, unable to obtain the services which they wanted from the states, turned to the federal government as the only means of getting these services — minimum wage, unemployment insurance, etc. The inability or the failure of the states to meet these needs during the years of the depression created a political vacuum which ultimately and inevitably was filled by the federal government.

2. The states can reverse this trend only when they are willing to discharge the functions which they would like the federal government to vacate.

The President is offering to help return to the states some of the vast powers they have lost, but only on the assumption that the powers will be used, not neglected.

Legislatures Lop-sided

3. Perhaps a modest beginning can be made, but if there is to be any meaningful redress in the balance of power between the states and federal government, the lop-sided representation of thinly populated, rural areas in nearly every state legislature in the country will have to be corrected.

In state government the largest part of the population is today suffering "taxation without representation." Until the people are equally represented in the state legislatures, their needs will be neglected.

Prof. Gordon E. Baker of the University of California, who has prepared a masterly study of the facts, puts it this way: "No study commission can hope to solve the issues of federalism and decentralization without first facing up to the widespread extent of urban under-representation in state legislatures."

Look at the distorted make-up in state legislatures.

Hartford, a city of 177,000 residents, sends two representatives to the Connecticut House as does the town of Union with a population of 261.

The 30 inhabitants of Victory, Vt., enjoy the same share of the lower House as do Burlington's 33,000.

Take two of the larger states. Rural Sussex County's 34,000 inhabitants and Essex County's 900,000 each send one senator to the New Jersey Legislature.

California Example

Los Angeles County's more than 4,000,000 people receive no more Senate representation in Sacramento than do the 14,000 people in the District comprising Mono, Inyo and Alpine Counties.

Professor Baker has put together a chart showing the extent of urban under-representation in all the 48 states. From it you can see why the mayors of the cities constantly turn to Washington instead of to their state capitals for assistance.

The six largest urban counties in Georgia, representing 32 per cent of the state population, make up only 7 per cent of the Georgia Senate.

Nine of the most populous counties of Florida, comprising 60 per cent of the state population, make up only 24 per cent of the Senate.

Two States Fair

Four of the largest urban counties in Maryland have 67 per cent of the population, 31 per cent of the Senate.

In Arizona two of the largest urban counties comprise 62 per cent of the population, 7 per cent of the Senate.

The largest urban county of New Mexico has 31 per cent of the population and its representatives comprise 3 per cent of the Senate.

In only two states, Wisconsin and Massachusetts, do the people of the cities have equal representation with the people living in the rural areas.

Voters who cannot fairly influence their own state legislatures will inevitably turn to Washington.

Expert Claims Women Drivers Are Menaces

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Men have been complaining about us women as drivers ever since we've had cars. Now, another male adds his voice to the protesting chorus.

This time, it is the nation's top teen-age driver, who says most women are second-rate motorists. . . some of them just plain menaces.

Gay Pauley

"I won't ride with my own mother," said Charles Earl Hopkins, 19, of Atlanta. "Men make better drivers because they have more of a mechanical knack. . . better coordination than women."

Hopkins, who graduated from high school last spring, came to Manhattan for a brief visit after winning the annual teen-age Road-E-O in Washington. He will use his $2,000 winnings to study physical education at Wofford College, Spartanburg, S.C. After college, he plans to coach.

Makes One Exception

Hopkins makes one exception in his criticism of feminine drivers—his "steady" for a year, Betty Evans, a high school senior. "She's a pretty good driver. But when we're out, I take the wheel," he said.

Hopkins believes the number one cause of highway accidents, no matter what the age group, is lack of courtesy on the road.

Other young drivers, all of whom at one time have entered the Road-E-O, disagree. They blame high speeds, violation of traffic laws and inattention of drivers.

This showed in a study made by the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, two of the sponsors of the annual contest. They polled 1,500 drivers, all of whom have been state finalists.

Other major hazards, listed in order of importance, were improperly trained drivers, emotionally immature drivers, mechanical defects, too much speed and horsepower, and poor driving conditions.

Ask Built-In Speed

The teen-agers said better law enforcement and reduction of speed limits would help cut the highway toll. But a majority thought there should be regulations on how much speed a manufacturer could build into a car. They also called for stiffer penalties on traffic violators. Some recommended suspension of licenses after more than two serious violations.

This year's champ says parents and schools also will have to take a hand. He pointed out that the 16 to 25 year old group has the highest auto accident rate.

"Every high school should have a driver education program," said Hopkins. "And parents should help the children get in drivng practice. A young person should get behind a wheel as often as he can get his hands on the car."

The Lighter Side—

New York Is Getting Too Darned Intellectual

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) —This town is too all-fired intellectual for its Bermuda britches. Some of us are getting the egghead blues.

A little learning may be a dangerous thing, but a lot of learning can be a boring thing, particularly if it is spewed around the air generally, like insecticide from an aerosol can.

Perhaps the double-dome trend is the result of the gathering here, waiting to appear, or continuing to appear, on TV quiz programs of the greatest herd of fact-packed, tape - recorder brains in the history of the human race.

But whatever the cause, I draw the line when this creeping intellectualism infiltrates my favorite form of culture, the singing commercial. I almost jumped out of my shaving lather the other morning when I turned on the radio before breakfast and out of it came a jingle touting a product as a "new ubiquitous comestible."

Juicy Lyrics

After that line, my orange juice tasted as if it had been curdled by the prevailing ubiquity. First thing we know, they'll be working Shakespearean soliloquies into advertising jingles.

Brainwaves already are washing over our saloon life. In one joint, on certain nights every two weeks, the bartender whips off his apron, gets all the customers into the dining room, closes the doors, and gives a half-hour lecture on history.

The thirst for knowledge, while perhaps not as powerful as some other thirsts exhibited by customers in the barroom, has kept his lectures crowded with attentive listeners, says Ed Gormley.

Gormley, besides being bartender, is proprietor of the Guardsman restaurant and cocktail lounge. He also is intelligence officer of the 107th Regiment, New York National Guard, and is deeply interested in military history. His lectures grew out of barside chatting sessions in which some customers told him history should be taught the way he talked it.

Dresses Part

Gormley gets dressed up, for his lectures, in the military garb of the period being discussed. Last week he did Sherman's march through Georgia and pretended to be a member of Sherman's staff just arrived in New York. Coming up, he has the revolutionary Battle of Brooklyn and, in September, the Landing at 34th Street. His bar is located in what he calls "the axis of advance" of that landing.

Another, but different, cave of learning is the College of Complexes, a Greenwich Village nightclub which instead of the usual ru.. of comic-singer - dancer entertainment books lecturers and encourages debates among its patrons. Among subjects up for lecture, and later forum discussion, this month are "Why Does New York Theater Stink?" "Should Nationalist Puerto Ricans Shoot Congressmen?" and "Is Carmine Desapio Obsolete?"

It's getting so an ignorant slob feels mighty lonely around here.

Irish Writer Observes 50th Year with Novel

By UNITED PRESS

Padraic Colum, who is this year celebrating his 50th anniversary as a writer, recently remarked that the Irish, excellent story-tellers that they are, have always found the construction of the novel somewhat difficult: due, he said, to the fact that they were forced to cater to (romantic) American and English markets, rather than being free to develop a native style for themselves.

"The Flying Swans" (Crown) — if one doesn't count 1923's abortive "Castle Conquer" — and Colum would rather not count it — is his first novel and it both proves and disproves his contention. It is entirely Irish, so much so that the foreign reader may often feel — as he does with Joyce — that he is missing something. On the other hand, its construction, drawn out over ten years of Colum's writing time, is rambling and episodic to the point of formlessness.

The story is that, apparently most dear to the Irish fantasy, of alienation and expulsion. Young Ulick O'Rehill is rejected first by his father and his father's family, then by his country: a pattern of rejection growing from home to society to the last, most dangerous threat, of alienation from himself. A solution is found through art: "The sincere artist . . . is the man who reconciles."

Colum is a poet, playwright, story-teller. As was almost to be expected, the broad statement of his theme often becomes engulfed by the more vital by-play of his story. The matchless evocation of boyhood in Ireland, and the characters who people Ulick's never-quite-believable country: hunchback, patriarch cynic and a rack of unforgettable females — all make "Swans" a notable performance.

Ventresca-Del Rosso Rites

Solemnized Saturday at Scott Twp.

Mrs. Charles Francis Del Rosso
(Nita Jeannine Ventresca)

Exchanging nuptial vows in Our Lady of Grace Roman Catholic Church of Scott Township on Saturday, Aug. 17, were Nita Jeannine Ventresca and Charles Francis DelRosso.

The lines of the ceremony were read at 11 o'clock in the morning before an altar arranged with summer flowers and ferns. The Rev. M. J. Conroy officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ventresca, of R. D. 1 Bridgeville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco DelRosso, 1000 Knox Ave.

Given by Father

Entering the church with her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was attired in a floor length gown of Chantilly lace and pleated tulle. It was styled with a scalloped neckline and short sleeves. Her scalloped crown headdress held her fingertip veil of sheer illusion. She carried a bridal arrangement of white roses centered with an orchid.

Gladys Schultz served the bride as honor attendant. She wore a full length gown of aqua taffeta accented with a peacock blue back bustle. Her bouquet was of pink rosebuds.

Bridesmaids were Connie Seamon, Janet Stoyle and Irma Yassem. The junior bridesmaid was Paulette Powner. They wore gowns styled identically to that selected by the maid of honor. Their bouquets were of mixed summer flowers.

Albert Bruno was best man for Mr. DelRosso. Serving as ushers were Edward Guglielmi, Eugene Pupilli, John Ventresca and Terry DelRosso, who was the junior usher.

A poudre blue silk organza dress was selected by the mother of the bride to wear to her daughter's wedding. It was accented in silver, and she wore a pink rosebud corsage. Mrs. DelRosso wore a blue lace ensemble with a pink rosebud corsage.

After the ceremony the reception was held in the Sports Haven Roller Rink at Bridgeville.

When the couple left for a trip to the New England States the bride was wearing a brown sheath dress with brown and white sleeveless jacket and matching accessories. They plan to reside in Carnegie.

Bennati Family Returns from European Trip

Mr. and Mrs. John Bennati, Sr., and son, John, Jr., have just returned to their home on Chestnut St., after a European vacation.

While abroad they visited in Paris, where they toured many historical places such as Gothic Cathedral of Notre Dame, Sorbonne, Louvre Palace, Arc de Triumphe, Church of the Madeleine, Pantheon, Tour Eiffel, Luxembourg Palace and Versailles.

Other European cities visited were Marseilles, Nemes, Cannes and Nice, France; Genoa, Parma, Pisa, Florence, Bologna, Arrezo, Venice, Udine, Triest, Milan and Rome, Italy and Bern and Geneva, Switzerland.

While in Marseilles, France, Mr. Bennati was reunited with relatives he had not seen for 30 years.

Mrs. Bennati also visited with aunts and uncles, whom she was meeting for the first time.

ON THE BALL

By CLAIR BROWN

'Towney' Reveals Strategy 'Tricks'

Having retired, Stewart Townsend — the former Monessen and West Newton High football-basketball coach — is willing to discuss his strategy tricks. "One of my finest players at Monessen was Jack Reed," muses Towney. "But he had to be fired to play his best. So I deliberately picked a fight with him prior to every game. He'd wind up taking out his spite on the opposition. He was a splendid player." . . . By the way, Towney also recalls the time his boys nabbed a Charleroi spy scouting MHS football practices. They intended to hold the man, who was actually an assistant coach from Rochester who had been loaned to the Cougars for the cloak-and-dagger assignment. However city police informed Towney that would be kidnapping. "It was suggested then that we throw him in the river," laughed Towney. "I don't know if that was ever done."

Another basketball coaching vacancy now exists in the valley with the announcement that Alex Barantovich had given up the Brownsville High cage post. Baran, who is also the grid mentor at Brownsville claims the two head jobs are too much for one man. He has always said he didn't care for coaching the "round ball" sport for he gave up the same position a few years back at Redstone . . . While the former Monongahela High and Penn State great was rejoicing over being relieved of the cage duties he received a jolt when informed he had lost a veteran assistant football aide, Chuck Muchoney, who has accepted a position at Hurst High and resigned his Brownsville post. That leaves Barantovich with only the veterans Chuck Slick and Fred Kreuter as helpers for today's opening drills.

Monessen CIO 'Unhappy' Over Ruling

Manager Jim Cramer and his Monessen CIO softballers of the Tri-County League aren't a bit happy over the "thumbs down" ruling on their protest of a play in the Monongahela-Monessen second playoff tilt. Cramer and his lads are yelling "we wuz robbed." Neutral spectators at the game advised Cramer to protest formally (which he planned to do anyway) and he did but the governing body (three managers not involved in the playoffs) who ruled on the protest said "no soap." It marred an otherwise fine season for the TCSL . . . Petey Druash has his Grand Parlor bowling lanes all spic and span with a brand new coat of paint plus other improvements. The new season opened there last night.

The Band Parents Association will again operate the concession stand at Rostraver for varsity football games this season. At Junior High games, the concessions will be sponsored by students . . . More coaching vacancies have been filled, one at Latrobe where William Gillespie (formerly at Rochester) was named an aide to Ray V. Wild, head grid mentor and another at Oakmont where Al Kennedy moved up from junior high to help Elmer Gross. Warren Reddinger replacing Kennedy. A vacancy exists at Apollo, however, in both football and basketball, head jobs at that.

Local Youth May Be New 'Nittany Lion'

Al Klimcke, Penn State Nittany Lion Mascot for the past three football seasons, will be prowling the mountains around Fort Knox, Ky., for the next six months, a guest of Uncle Sam . . . Another Monessen boy, sophomore Tom Monios, stands a good chance of taking over the mascot position in the coming season. He is one of two finalists who will vie for the position at the first two Penn State home games. Whichever of the two puts on the best show will get the job, which carries with it a free trip to nearly all the Nittany Lions away games, and a possible varsity letter.

Basilio Plans For 'Little Extra' Effort

By CARMEN BASILIO
World Welterweight Champion

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (UP)—On Monday, September 23, I fight Sugar Ray Robinson at the Yankee Stadium for the middleweight championship of the world.

It would be a complete understatement for me to say I intend to win this fight. Not that I don't intend to win all my fights. But for this one, I'm going to give it a little extra something that you can't pin down. Maybe I'll be fighting over my head. Maybe I'll be inspired by something I can't define.

I don't hate Ray Robinson. I just don't like him. Why?

For me, who likes everybody, that's not too easy to explain.

Here Are Reasons

I always admired him as a fighter and still respect his ability in the ring despite his age. I'd be a sucker if I regarded him as a pushover. He's too smart a fighter and he must still pack a wallop from the way he knocked out Gene Fullmer. But I don't like him personally although I've only met him a few times.

Perhaps it's because he is a demanding kind of a guy. He wants everything and doesn't want the other man to have anything. He has no respect for time and people. He doesn't mind keeping you waiting an hour or so, like he did when we signed contracts at the commission. And there was the time, when I was just coming up when I felt a thrill at meeting him one day on Broadway and he didn't even acknowledge my greeting with a wave of the hand. These, and other little items, have piled up in me and they'll all be coming out the night of the fight.

Eager For Robinson

It would be hard to sell people on a statement that I would have fought Robinson for nothing if that was the only way to get the fight. If I had ever said that, Robinson would have asked for 60 per cent instead of the 45 per cent he's getting. I say it now, however, because the contracts are signed and there's nothing he can do to change the figures.

I've seen Ray Robinson fight before. In fact, I saw him fight Fullmer in Chicago. Fullmer made the mistake of opening up for Robinson and Robinson nailed him. I don't fight like Fullmer. I think also that I punch harder and faster than Fullmer. Robinson won't be able to hit me as easy as he did Fullmer. And Robinson may not be able to take the punishment.

I'm confident of victory but won't make any predictions as to how it will happen. And the fact that I don't like him will be an added starter in my corner.

Ravens on Top in CL Playoffs

Scoring intermittingly, then holding off an Italian Hall rally, the Ravens took the first game of its three-game series with Italian Hall last night, 8-5, in the City Softball League playoffs.

The same two foes go at it again tonight and if the Ravens can do a repeat the Haller will be on the outside looking in for '57. The winner of this series will meet PNA in the next round of action, which would be Wednesday if the Ravens win tonight, Thursday if Italian Hall cops.

Despite being held to only four hits the Ravens took advantage of errors and base-on-balls by Italian Hall to win, 8-5. The four safe blows by the winners, however, included a homer by Bob Mascetta in the third with a runner on base, a double by Tom Derrico, which didn't figure in the scoring and a two-bagger by Andy Kalie which did, driving across a run in the sixth. A single by Lou Kunka which sent another run across in the seventh was the fourth safety.

Italian Hall got 10 hits off Chuprinko, Ravens hurler, but he kept them scattered. The Hallers scored in the third on back-to-back doubles by Doc Destefano and Dan Danser. They tallied again in the fourth on a single by Paul Pacak, a wild pitch and a single by Steve Hardoby. Three singles, an error and a fielder's choice accounted for three runs in the last inning.

Destefano with three hits, including a double, Gene Quinn and Hardoby both with two blows paced the losers. Bob Mascetta's homer was the best Raven effort.

FC-New Eagle Tilt Rained Out, Try Again Tonight

The Mon Valley League playoff game between New Eagle and Fayette City set for Fayette City last night was rained out and will be played at Fayette City tonight beginning at 5:30 o'clock.

New Eagle is "two up" in the series and needs only another victory over slumping Fayette City to take home the bacon.

The winner of this series will meet Charleroi in a best of seven set for the 1957 title. Charleroi disposed of Perryopolis in a five game set 3-1.

New Eagle and Fayette City have been having difficulty with their series, one game being a stalemate and now a rainout.

Charleroi may be forced to play all away games in the final series due to grid drills starting at home field Charleroi Stadium.

JAY PEAKE shows his National Championship form

Jay Peake Wins Title With a Broken Bow

Take a partially broken bow, new type arrows, plus a determined archer and you have the answer to winning of the National Archery title in Watkins Glen, N. Y. last week by Jay Peake, of the Charleroi Archery Club.

Jay, only 18 but already showing archers far his senior "how it's done" broke record after record in the meet held last week. He won in the Field, Hunters and Big Game rounds.

His aggregate score of 2,747, all compiled on instinctive or barebow shooting topped by five points the nearest free style or "shooting with sights" archer. Quite a feat no matter what the instinctive archer's age.

Dan Cupid's Feat

Not only did Jay surprise his many followers with his archery feats but he also let them in on the exploits of another famous archer, namely Dan Cupid. Jay announced during the tourney that he was married to the former Lucy Gembarosky, formerly of Donora. Lucy has a sports background in addition to her archery interest. Her brother is Gabe Gembarosky, the former Donora High grid standout. Jay and Lucy were wed just a month ago.

While Jay came home all enthused over his exploits and immediately showed it was no fluke by copping top honors in the Expert A class weekly shoot at his home club, the Charleroi Archery group, Sunday, his homecoming took a sad turn Sunday night.

Jay's cousin, and best friend, James Anders was killed in an automobile crash on Route 31, outside of Monongahela, and another friend and former archer meet foe Gary Anderson, was injured in the same wreck. The sadness was in Jay's voice as he said, "Jim (Anders) was just starting to come along as an archer."

Week after next the young champion will receive a wonderful opportunity to get away with his new bride and relax from the fast pace of the past week and this sudden setback.

He will be the guest of Fred Bear of Grayling, Mich., at the Grayling Bowl Manufacturing Co. Harry Lane, of Charleroi, a Bear Bow dealer in Charleroi, will accompany Jay and Lucy on the trip.

Partially-Broken Bow

The story behind this invitation is the partially broken bow with an almost completely worn-out hand-grip which won the tourney honors under young Peake's careful aim, was (yes, you guessed it) a Bear bow.

As to the new type arrows, Jay decided to use aluminum shaft arrows instead of the wooden type. "I think they are 'truer' than wooden arrows," says Jay.

One of the youthful Charleroi archer's biggest boosters is Bud Williams of the Archery Club there who sums up the accomplishment. Says Bud, "We kept telling our friends that Jay could do it and he didn't let us down".

Jay Peake took up right where he left off in the National Archery Tournament upon his return home Sunday as he shot a 468 to lead his mates in the Expert A class at the Charleroi Archery Club.

Other winners were:

Expert A — M. Scrip, 359; Bill Pulaski, 316; Expert B — P. Gillen Sr., 298; H. Gainer, 285; Ft. Bush, 246; Bowman — T. Barkley, 207; D. Komondor, 203; M. Stagi, 202; Archer — J. Withrow, 177; T. Withrow, 155; Puglia, 139; Novice — J. Daumit, 123; Redinger, 101; Junior A — D. Frederick, 303; Junior B — J. Bair, 127; B. Sutch, 122; N. Barthole, 92; Junior C — C. Stagi, 70; J. Koronowski, 62.

Approximately 50 archers participated in the event.

Rifle Tourney Enters Second Day of Shooting

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (UP) — Competition in the 1957 small bore rifle championship entered its second day here with John Moschkaw of Waterloo, Iowa, holding a slim lead.

Moschkaw posted a three-match total of 1,199-96 out of a possible 1,200-120 in the first day's firing Monday.

In second place was Richard Stainbrook of Zanesville, Ohio, with 1,199-74. Ransford D. Triggs of Madison, N J, was third with 1,197-85.

Other leaders included Bob Perkins of Fresno, Calif, who scored 1,196-73, and defending champion J. Kenneth Johnson of Washington, Pa, who posted 1,193-90.

Fifty Grid Hopefuls Report to Niccolai For Initial Practice

Predominately Sophomore Squad Sent Through 'Limbering Up' Sessions

Approximately 50 grid candidates for the 1957 Monessen High football squad reported to head coach Armand Niccolai at the Stadium Annex yesterday and were immediately put through a "loosening up" drill.

The squad was principally a sophomore group with nearly 20 first-year gridders reporting, 15 juniors and 12 seniors.

"We've got a lot of work ahead of us," Nick said after looking over his squad which is minus such standouts as last year's top-notch backfield talent of Carl Crawley, Maurice Mathieu and John Bogovich, and outstanding linemen like Bob Burns, John Stunda, John Mallino, etc.

Niccolai and his aides put the squad through a "laps and calisthenics" drill in both morning and afternoon sessions.

Meanwhile at other district schools, Bellmar mentor Bap Manzini had 50 grid hopefuls report and Wade Bender at Rostraver greeted 47. The largest turnout were at Redstone and Uniontown where 70 candidates reported to coaches Joe Bosnic and Bill Power respectively. Charleroi reported about 65, Monongahela between 55-60. Donora between 45-50, and Brownsville around 50.

Monessen opens its 1957 season at Windber on Saturday night, September 14.

Local PONY Teams To Attend 'Series'

Helping to cheer Donora's PONY League entry on in the coming World Series at Washington, Pa. will be the four Monessen PONY entries, the Lions, CIO, Eagles and Ravens.

It was announced today by local league secretary Steve Tkachik that the four Monessen teams would travel by bus next Monday evening to witness the Donorans in action against an time is 8:30 o'clock uder the entry to be announced. Game lights at PONY Field, Washington.

The buses will leave from the CIO Hall here at 5:30 o'clock.

Each player is requested to notify his manager of his intentions toward attending the game and to obtain more detailed information.

Monongahela Tops Roscoe In TCSL, 4-1

Monongahela went ahead in the five-game Tri-County Softball League championship series with Roscoe with a 4-1 decision at Monongahela last night.

Art Doty tossed a two-hitter at the losers with Andy Smith and Dave Schaum leading the hitting. Smith clubbed a homer and a double, Schaum two singles. Art Spaziani and Ray Pettrobom each blasted out doubles.

Monongahela took a 1-0 lead in the third inning and increased it to 3-1 in the fifth then 4-1 in the seventh with Roscoe coming back with a run in the ninth before Doty shut off the rally.

A highlight of the game was the awarding of the league trophy to Manager Ray Peitrobom of the Monongahela team, for winning the '57 pennant. The award was made by President Ted Nichols of the Tri-County League.

Action resumes tomorrow night at Roscoe, the teams taking a night off tonight.

Hurley Set to Laugh as 'Open' Bout Draws Well

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP) — The critics scoffed and the experts ridiculed the Floyd Patterson-Pete Rademacher world's "open" heavyweight boxing championship here Thursday — but promoter Jack Hurley sat back to laugh today.

"We'll have a 25,000 crowd — largest ever drawn west of the Mississippi," said Hurley. "And we expect that the gate will be upward of $400,000."

That means that the 22 backers from Georgia who put up $250,000 will get most of their money back. Getting 60 per cent of the gate they needed something like $416,000 to break even.

But they will make their money for Youths Unlimited, Inc, from the exclusive rights to films from the bout. For the first time in 36 years there will be no radio broadcast or televising of a heavyweight championship bout.

Of course, to make any money off the films, Youth Unlimited is going to have to get some cooperation from the principals in the fight.

"We're going to hold this fight rain or shine," says Hurley. "Shucks, the fellows up here don't care if it rains. They kind of like it in fact."

The bout will go on at 10 p.m. pst. (2 a.m. Friday, edt).

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Body English

Whenever I start missing those three and four-footers — and even shorter ones, I generally find that I have been making slight body movements between the time I take my putter away from the ball and the time I hit the putt. These movements are slight, too — so slight as not to even be noticeable to the casual observer — but they are still fatal to your chance of holing the putt.

Over-anxiety is almost always the cause of these little body movements. In your desire to get the ball into the hole, you try to give it some help with your body. But let me say that it's not help you're giving; it's just the opposite!

There's only one cure for this and that's to stand still until the ball is hit and on its way. Keep in mind that the putt can be hit right only if the putter is brought into the ball square with the intended line. Remember: Only the head of the putter can knock that ball into the hole!

Champions Face Strong Challenges In Golf Play

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UP) — Three champions and a group of eager, long - hitting young challengers led the way today into the second round of the 57th U.S. Women's Amateur golf championship.

Defending champion Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont.; Barbara Romack Porter of Sacramento, the 1954 champ, and Patricia Lesser of Seattle, 1955 titlist, headed the 64 players left in the tournament after the first day.

But they faced a strong challenge from a group of free-swinging youngsters headed by Joanne Gunderson and Anne Quast of Seattle; Judy Eller, the 16-year-old National Junior champ from Old Hickory, Tenn., and Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio, only a year or so out of her teens and the longest hitter in the tournament.

Neither Strand, Porter nor Lesser rank in the ancients class, all being in their 20s. But none of them in the first-round match at the 6,368, par-four Del Paso Country Club produced the brand of golf shown Monday by Misses Quast and Gunderson.

Net Fans Await Althea's Debut

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (UP) Tennis fans awaited the scheduled debut today of Althea Gibson after seeing all the seeded teams march to first - round victories in the 77th annual U.S. doubles championships.

The rangy Negro star and Californian Darlene Hard, who shared the Wimbledon crown, were rated the best bet to challenge the supremacy of defending champions Louise Brough and Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont.

Globe-trotting Budge Patty was expected in from Germany to join 43-year-old Gardnar Mulloy for their first match of the seven-day tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club. They were given first seeding and an apparent easy second-round foe.

Oddmakers Says Braves, Yanks Are 'in' But Managers Hedging

By MILTON RICHMAN

The Yankees and Braves are "in," according to the oddsmakers, and that's the same feeling Casey Stengel and Fred Haney shared today although they both made the traditional "anything-can-happen-yet" speech just to hedge a bit.

Stengel's Yankees have a 7½-game lead with only 37 games left to play as they launch their final Western trip tonight with a game against their Kansas City cousins.

The quotation on the world champions is "out" and 10-1. That means if you want to bet they will win the American League pennant, you're out of luck, but if you want to bet they won't, you can get 10-1 odds.

Milwaukee, with a 6½-game lead and 37 games remaining, starts its last big road trip of the year with a game against the Pirates tonight. And if you think the Braves won't win the National League flag, there's 7-1 odds waiting for you.

Apparently, neither Stengel nor Haney is worrying unduly about "blowing" the pennant in the next 40 days.

"This thing ain't over yet," said the ever-cautious Stengel, "even though I gotta say we look in good shape. If we can get through this trip with a pretty good lead, I think we'll be all right."

On the Milwaukee side of the ledger, Haney pooh - poohed the idea that the Braves' three weekend losses to the second-place St. Louis Cardinals was the beginning of a "nosedive."

"It was just a natural let-down after winning 10 in a row," declared the Milwaukee skipper. "I think ew can bounce right back." This is a good ball club that's confident it can go all the way."

Kansas City defeated Cleveland, 1-0, on Tom Gorman's four - hit pitching in the only major league game scheduled Monday.

The Athletics scored the only run of the game in the sixth inning off Ray Narleski when Bob Cerv singled, stole second and came home on Tim Thompson's single. The victory was Gorman's third of the season while Narleski suffered his third loss against nine victories.

Gino Cimoli's 11th-inning double gave the Dodgers a 2-1 victory over the International League All-Stars at Montreal. Held hitless over the first six innings, tied the score in the eighth and went on to win the game in the 11th on Cimoli's hit which scored Junior Gilliam. Southpaw Sandy Koufax was the winner in relief.

Bell-Perez Bout Ends in Draw

NEW YORK (UP) — Featherweights Bobby Bell and Lulu Perez, who fought to a draw in their TV 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night, were rematched today for the same ring on Sept. 9.

Bell of Youngstown, Ohio, although favored at 12-5, barely managed to eke out a draw when judge Leo Birnbaum gave him two points for his strong finish in the 10th round.

Giants Are Moving; N. Y. Wants Redlegs

NEW YOR K(UP) — Brooklyn goes next—and when the Dodgers finally do decide on Los Angeles, probably within the next 30 days, they'll leave the welcome mat out in New York for the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Dodger President Walter O'Malley wasn't particularly concerned today that the New York Giants had beaten him to the punch by their decision to play in San Francisco next year, but it was considered a foregone conclusion that he will have a similar announcement of his own before Oct. 1.

Even before the Dodgers transfer to Los Angeles, however, the Cincinnati Redlegs are expected to consumate a deal whereby they will play in the Polo Grounds next year.

Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R-Calif.) said in Washington that he "doubted" the Giants would have taken the step they did Monday without an "understanding" that Brooklyn would move to Los Angeles.

Hillings added that the Giants' decision to forsake New York was a forerunner of a Dodger shift by Oct. 1, and that he expects either Cincinnati or Pittsburgh to move a National League franchise to New York after Brooklyn leaves.

Redlegs Seek Larger Gate

The Redlegs, it was learned, are more inclined to make such a shift because they feel they have a solid, pennant - contending club which would draw far better in New York than it does in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati officials have discovered they can not expect too warm a welcome from Yankee President Dan Topping as potential tenants of the Yankee Stadium but the owners of the Polo Grounds have said they would be perfectly willing to rent it to another major league club. The Polo Grounds has a capacity of 53,000 as compared with 29,584 capacity of Crosley Field in Cincinnati.

On the question as to whether any major league club would have the right under baseball law to move into New York once the Dodgers join the Giants in moving to the West Coast, Commissioner Ford Frick said in Montreal Monday he planned to hold a meeting of club owners "before the World Series" to iron out the problems.

The National League formally approved the shift of both the Giants and Dodgers to San Francisco and Los Angeles Tuesday May 28, the day after United Press Sports Editor Leo Petersen revealed that those two clubs and Cinall would move.

Money No Obstacle

The Giants, having received the necessary approval to move from their board of directors Monday by a vote of 8-1, must now negotiate for the San Francisco franchise which is owned by Boston Red Sox President Tom Yawkey. It is understood Yawkey does not intend to stand in the Giants' way and that he will ask a reasonable sum.

Pacific Coast League officials, however, could prove far tougher nuts to crack. They demand to be indemnified for invasion of their territory and it could be that Giant owner Horace Stoneham would be hard put to raise the kind of money they might ask.

Leslie O'Connor, the one - time assistant to former commissioner K. M. Landis, and now president of the PCL, had a tart "no comment" over the Giants' latest action.

If an impasse comes about between the Giants and the PCL members, the case will be brought before a seven-man baseball arbitration board and it might hold up the Giants' official shift well into November.

Obviously happy over the board of directors' approval, Stoneham said he disliked leaving New York but was forced into the move because of waning fan interest.

When asked whether he thought some other club would come into New York, the Giants' president said, "I couldn't tell. I do know that this move of ours is the first step in the expansion of the majors."

The only dissenting voice among the Giants' board of directors was that of M. Donald Grant, a partner in a Wall Street firm, who said, "New York is still the best baseball town I know."

Lattner Shuns Limelight While Preparing for Grid Comback Try

By RUDY CERNKOVIC

OLEAN, N.Y. (UP)— The big fellow brushed his perspiring face with the sleeve of a well-worn jersey and said he preferred anonymity while preparing foor a football "comeback."

A few years ago Johnny Lattner was a unanimous All-America halfback choice because of his play with Notre Dame. He won the Maxwell Award twice in succession and added the coveted Heisman Trophy to his collection as Frank Leahy's "bread-and-butter player."

Lattner quietly slipped into the Pittsburgh Steeler training camp at St. Bonaventure University and told the coaches he hoped to regain the spot he held as a rookie in 1954. He was the No. 1 draft choice of the Steelers and went into the Air Force the following year.

Wants To Play Defense

"I hope to play defense, he said while relaxing in the partially dismantled stands at the college field. "I would rather make a key tackle than score a touchdown. There's something satisfying about playing defense. There's an espirit de corps that we defensive men seem to catch."

But while Steeler officials welcomed Lattner there was doubt whether his right knee had recovered from an injury suffered while playing with the Bolling Field team two years ago.

"My knee feels much better and stronger," Lattner said. "I think with time I may be able to break into the lineup."

Coach Walt Kiesling didn't share Lattner's optimism.

"If Johnny is perfectly sound, I have a spot for him," he said. "I'd like to play him as slot halfback. But that means he has to pivot and cut fast and I'm not sure his knee is up to it."

Lattner has passed up offers to coach high school football near his home in Chicago because he wants to answer a challenge.

"I owe it to myself and to the Steelers to try again," he said with great sincerity. "I want to play professional football for a while.

Meanwhile identical thumb injuries suffered by quarterbacks Ted Marchibroda and Jack Scarbath may give rookie Len Dawson a chance to start Saturday night in an exhibition against the Cleveland Browns at Akron, Ohio.

Marchibroda suffered a fracture of his right thumb on the first play of the game last Saturday night in which the Chicago Bears defeated the Steelers 4-7 at Jacksonville, Fla.

Scarbath, replacing Marchibroda, aggravated an injury on his right thumb. He was hurt last year in a game against the Los Angeles Rams.

A possibility developed that Harry Gilmer, Steeler backfield coach, may be placed on the active list to fill in as an emergency quarterback. Gilmer starred for Alabama and played professional ball with the Washington Redskins and the Detroit Lions.

Baltimore Wins ABA Tournament

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Baltimore parlayed a 14-hit assault with a three-hit pitching performance by Charles Ebner Monday night to defeat Brooklyn 7-1 for the championship of the 11th annual All-American Amateur Baseball Association tournament.

Ebner also drove in a run to help Baltimore to its second championship. The team won the title in 1946.

Tony Bongiorno, who allowed all 14 hits, suffered his first defeat after 69 victories. Brooklyn's only run came in the seventh inning as the result of an error.

Art Cleasures of Baltimore registered three hits to raise his total to 14 in 27 times at bat during the tourney. He was voted the most valuable player of the tourney.

Baltimore entered the finals after defeating defending champion Washington, D.C., Sunday. The Maryland team avenged two defeats in championship play handed it by Brooklyn in 1950 and 1951.

Braves in Final '57 Pirate Visit

PITTSBURGH (UP)— The Milwaukee Braves, leading the National League by six and a half games, make their final appearance of the season at Forbes Field tonight.

Warren Spahn (14-8) will take the mound against the Pirates whose pitching choice is Vernon Law (9-7).

The Braves defeated the Pirates 14 times this season while dropping five decisions to the tail-enders.

The Pirates will be hosts to the Cincinnati Redlegs for a three-game series beginning Thursday and will take on the Chicago Cubs in a Sunday doubleheader.

50,000 WPIAL Gridders Report

HARRISBURG, (UP) — The shape of things to come today was reflected in the images of 50,000 Pennsylvania boys working out on sun-baked gridirons in the first practice sessions for the on-rushing schoolboy football season.

Although the first games are not slated until Sept. 13—almost a week later than usual, regulations of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association permit training sessions to begin this week.

PIAA Executive Secretary Mark Funk said that 750 of the association's near 1,000 member schools will field teams this year.

"The number of schools with grid teams is increasing because of an increase in school jointures," Funk said. "With larger enrollments the jointures have the manpower to play the game."

Funk said the only changes in the schoolboy game this year are of a technical nature—with one exception.

"The only thing spectators probably will notice is that this year a coach will be permitted to confer with one member of the team at each time out," he said.

The PIAA will be shooting for its 7th successive year without a fatality in the game. Last year 10 fatalities occurred in schoolboy football throughout the nation but Pennsylvania made its six years in a row without an accident resulting in death.

Here are the title winners in some of the major conferences in 1956:

Central Penn — Williamsport; WPIAL—Class "AA", Jeannette; Class "A", Braddock; Class "B", Midway; East Penn—Swoyersville, which also took the Northern Division crown; Southern Division St. Clair; Bucktail Conference, St. Marys; Twin Valley, Juiata Joint; Susquehanna Valley, Athens; Conference of the Roses, Ephrata.

Giants Own Best Pennant Record

NEW YORK (UP)—The Giants leave New York with the best pennant-winning record of any team in the National League.

During the modern era of baseball (starting in 1900), the Giants won 15 pennants and five world championships. They also finished first twice during the "Gaslight Era"—in 1888 and 1889.

The only major league club with a better pennant-winning record is the New York Yankees.

Most successful of all Giants' managers was the legendary John McGraw, who guided the team to 10 National League pennants and five world championships.

Belle Monette Club In Summer Outing

A summer meeting was held recently by the Belle Monette Club at Monessen City Park.

The women gathered for an early evening meal, which was planned by Mrs. William Wagner and Mrs. Raymond Swearer.

Cards were played for the remainder of the session.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nelson and family, of Clarksburg, W. Va., have returned home after visiting Mrs. Fannie Parenti and other local relatives for several days.

Food Distribution Here Tomorrow

Federal surplus food will be distributed on Wednesday evening at the American Legion Home between 7 and 8 p. m.

This distribution is only for those already registered in North Belle Vernon, Westmoreland County. Andrew Luzanski will be in charge.

Mrs. V. William Dobas and sons, Darrell and Douglas, have returned to their homes in Belle Vernon after visiting in Cleveland and Painesville, Ohio, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard F. Jackson.

BELLE VERNON

Belle Vernon — North Belle Vernon — Washington Township — Fairhope — Speers

Correspondent: Mrs. John Hurley — Phone B. V. 1058

Mr. and Mrs. George Usher and sons, Bruce, Mark and Bert Lee, of Water St., are visiting relatives in Terra Alta, W. Va.

Freddie Federer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Federer, has been confined to his home by illness.

Annual BV Street Carnival Opens; Parade on Thursday

The annual street carnival held by Belle Vernon Fire Co. No. 2 opened last night and will continue each night this week through Saturday.

The booths have been set up on Second St. between Main and Water streets.

There are games, refreshments and various types of entertainment. As a highlight of the affair organ selections are played nightly at the site by Darwin Bethem. Plans are also made to have other entertainment presented.

Gordon Bethem and Charles Galligan are co-chairmen of the activity and they are being assisted by a large committee of the firemen.

Thursday night will be parade night with Dan Davenport acting as parade marshall. The exact time for the procession to move will be 7:30 o'clock.

Already the committee in charge has received word from between 40 and 50 companies planning to participate.

Judges will select the outstanding units and cash prizes will be given.

Free Methodist Pastor Stays at Local Church

The Rev. Clair Hess, pastor of the Free Methodist Church of Belle Vernon, was reassigned to the local charge at the annual conference of the Pittsburgh Free Methodist Conference.

He has also been assigned to serve the Free Methodist Church of Charleroi. Previously the Rev. Mr. Hess acted as pastor of the Belle Vernon and Sunnyside churches, however at the conference the circuit was rearranged. Sunnyside was assigned a resident pastor.

The Hess family will continue to occupy the local parsonage on Arch St., which is located next door to the church at Arch and Speer streets.

Some changes will be made necessary in the service schedule, but these will be announced later.

Card Party to Be Held Tomorrow

At 8 o'clock tomorrow evening there will be a card party at St. Sebastian school rooms. It will be open to the public, and is the first one to be held since June.

The July and August committees of the Women's Guild combined to plan for the affair. They met yesterday to complete all preparty arrangements.

All types of games will be played, and prizes for high scores will be awarded.

There will be luncheon served and a candy sale as special features of the evening.

Robert Whitelaw, North Belle Vernon fire chief, will take part in the program at the Fire School now in session at California State Teachers College. He is presenting a discussion and demonstration of fire extinguishers.

This is the 23rd annual school, and it is being sponsored by the Western Pennsylvania Fire Chiefs and Assistant Chiefs Association in cooperation with the Public Service Institute, Department of Public Instruction.

Carol Davenport and Doreen Wright have returned home from Albion, where they represented the Ladies Auxiliary to Belle Vernon Fire Co. No. 2 at the annual convention of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association.

The second meeting of the month for the members of the Women's Benefit Association has been cancelled. The next meeting will be held on Friday evening, Sept. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sulek and children, of California, Pa., visited recently with Mrs. Sulek's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith, of Speer St.

The Belle Vernon Women of the Moose will meet this evening in the lodge room. There will be an executive session at 7 o'clock and a lodge session at 7:30.

Mrs. Earl Cramer, of State St., who has been a patient in the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital for some time has returned home.

Nancy Myers, of Belle Vernon R. D., is a patient in the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

Perfect Alibi

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — Ben Brooks, 48, had a good excuse for not being able to pay a traffic ticket he got last Jan. 5 for not having a driver's license and city inspection tag. On the date he was to appear in court here he was in West Memphis, jailed on a drunk driving charge.

Clout of Season

CERRO GORDO, Ill. (UP) — Snowballs can cause damage even in summer. A teen-ager admitted Monday he broke a cafe sign with a snowball made from ice chipped from a refrigerator.

Willing Workers Class Meets at Marion Church

The August meeting of the Willing Workers Class of the Marion Presbyterian Church was held on Friday evening in the church social rooms.

A devotional program conducted by Mrs. Thompson Kirby and Mrs. James Todd opened the evening's activities. The program began with the group singing of the hymn, "Have Thine Own Way." Mrs. Kirby gave a reading on "Foundation For Your Faith." This article told the story of the well known hymn, "How Firm A Foundation." After the women joined in singing this hymn Mrs. Todd read a poem, "If Jesus Came to Your House". Mrs. Kirby concluded the session with prayer.

Mrs. Betty Hamer, vice president, was in charge of the business session in the absence of the president, Mrs. Bertha Kennedy. Ann Gantner, who is temporarily serving as secretary, reported on the last meeting. Mrs. Ross Crago was in charge of the flower fund.

Plans were discussed for the September meeting, which will be held in the church social rooms. Ann Gantner and Ruth Beazell are to be the September hostesses.

A social hour supplemented the business session and refreshments were served. Each member provided her own paper bag luncheon.

Lions Governor Plans Visit Here

Arthur Stratton, of Murrysville, governor of Lions District 14 E, is scheduled to pay an official visit to the Washington Township Lions Club this week. He will be accompanied by Ross Aiello, of Monessen, Deputy District Governor.

The men will attend the regular dinner meeting in the Marion Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening.

The school will conclude on Friday.

School Boards In Harrisburg To Open Bids

A delegation representing the Bellmarette Joint School Board and the four component boards, Belle Vernon, North Belle Vernon, Washington Township and Fayette City is in Harrisburg today to meet with R. C. Bartman of the State School Building Authority.

At noon the men will open the bids which have been submitted for the erection of the additions to Bellmar High School and Marion Junior High School.

The boards were requested to have as many members as possible in attendance, however, if this is not possible the secretary and president of each component board and the joint board is empowered to act for the body he represents.

Supervising Principal Robert VanBremen accompanied the board members.

Present plans call for the start of the construction projects as soon as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walko and daughter, Dorothy, and son, JoJo, have returned to their home on Hill St. after vacationing for the past week in Wildwood, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gorman, of Royal Oak, Mich., visited on Sunday in Belle Vernon.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Bachovchin, who died 18 years ago today, August 20, 1939.
We saw you fading like a flower
But could not make you stay;
We cared for you with tender kindness
Until God took you away.
To your graveside we often wander
And picture your face so fair,
In silence we stand in sorrow
For the one we loved so dear.
Sadly missed by Children and Grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Charles Pollack, who died nine years ago today, August 20, 1948.
Loving memories never die
As years roll on, and days pass by.
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept
Of one we loved and will never forget.
He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near
A grief, a tear, a thought sincere
How often we wish that you were here.
Sadly missed by the Pollack Family, wife, sons, daughter, son-in-law, daughters-in-law and grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Charles Singel, who died ten years ago today, August 20, 1947.
Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all;
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.
We often sit and think of you
And speak of how you died,
To think you could not say goodbye
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best
Oh, God, grant you eternal rest
Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Granddaughter.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Virginia Tucci, who died seven years ago, August 19, 1950.
You are not forgotten mother,
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes on we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by Sons and Daughters.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Hilda C. Pender, who died three years ago today, August 20, 1954.
You are not forgotten loved one,
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore
As time goes on, we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Talks Recessed In Glass Industry; Strike Possible

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Negotiators for 2,000 mold makers went back to their home locals today to ask authorization for a strike which could shutdown 31 glass container manufacturing firms across the nation.

Talks between the Flint Glass Workers Union and the Glass Containers Manufacturers Institute were recessed indefinitely Monday with wages the key to the contract deadlock.

Federal Mediation Commissioner William Rose, Philadelphia, indicated he might call another bargaining session before the contract expires at midnight, Aug. 31. Some observers were doubtful there would be time to avert a strike.

A walkout by the mold makers could bring a halt to the production of millions of glass bottles and jars that store America's food, drink and drugs. As many as 50,000 other glass workers could be idled.

Another Delay

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP) — The second straight 24-hour postponement of the Atomic Energy Commission's Doppler shot, the 13th in the summer test series, was announced Monday night. The AEC rescheduled the test for 5:30 a.m. Wednesday. Rain and strong winds were given as the reason for postponement.

Civil Rights Bill Is Bottled Up

WASHINGTON (UP) — The civil rights bill remained bottled up in the House Rules Committee today.

Northern Democrats ran into a hitch in trying to force out the bill. Necessary GOP votes appeared not to be immediately available.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. demanded "concessions" from Democrats in exchange for limiting the jury trial provision of the measure.

Martin told newsmen about the only way a civil rights bill will pass this session of Congress is for Democrats to "make some concessions" on their stand to have the House accept the Senate version of the bill with one change —limiting the jury trial to criminal contempt cases involving voting rights instead of covering criminal contempt cases generally.

Republicans want to strengthen the Senate bill more closely along the lines of the House bill. Martin said he would be glad to discuss changes with Democratic leaders, but he said none have approached him since the House got the Senate version of the bill Aug. 8.

Other congressional news:

Aid: The Senate Appropriations Committee called a closed - door meeting to work on the sharply-cut foreign aid appropriations bill. Committee members split sharply over administration pleas for restoration of the more than 800 million dollars slashed from the bill by the House.

Atomic: A Senate - House conference committee approved a compromise $352,145,000 atomic energy construction bill. The bill carries authorizations for the nuclear programs for peace and defense. It also carries 21 million—instead of 58 million — to start a series of Democratic-backed federal reactor programs.

Money: The Senate passed a $1,824,001,547 supplemental appropriations bill to finance a variety of federal programs. The bill included $800,000 for the Public Health Service's anti-Asiatic flu program. The bill was sent to a House-Senate conference committee.

Poultry: The Senate passed a compromise bill calling for compulsory federal inspection of poultry and poultry products in major consuming areas. The bill was sent to the White House.

Many 'Spectaculars' Lined Up for Video

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—The regular 1957-58 TV season seems to be shaping up as a lump of medium-tedium. It'll be up to the "one-shots" to shoot some juice into the schedule.

At NBC-TV, those one - shots used to be called "spectaculars," a word coined by President Pat Weaver. Weaver has since departed and so has the word. NBC - TV now calls them "specials."

William Ewald

Over at CBS-TV, they're officially called "special shows." Unofficially, however, everyone at CBS calls them spectaculars. You figure it.

ABC-TV has no problem at all. It doesn't call them anything. That's because it doesn't have any. That is, unless you stretch a point and count two spectacular special one-hour shows that Frank Sinatra will do in addition to his regular half-hour series on ABC-TV.

Something For Everyone

Like smorgasbord, the NBC-CBS spectacular - specials will contain something for everybody this season. The specs that'll catch the most eyes should be NBC-TV's "Annie Get Your Gun" (Nov. 27) with Mary Martin and CBS-TV's "Aladdin" (no date) with a book by S. J. Perelman and a score by Cole Porter.

CBS-TV's first spec will be "Crescendo," (Sept. 29) a 90-minute extravangaza that will offer everything but Asiatic flu. Lined up so far are: Ethel Merman, Rex Harrison, Peggy Lee, Benny Goodman, Louis Armstrong, Mahalia Jackson, Dinah Washington, Eddy Arnold and the Turk Murphy outfit.

CBS-TV also has scheduled Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper" (Oct. 8) and a musical version of "Junior Miss" (no date). The network also will preempt Ed Sullivan on Oct. 13 to offer "The First Edsel Show" with Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Rosemary Clooney and Louis Armstrong.

Along with these, CBS-TV also will beam out five other dramas and one musical (no properties selected yet), five one-hour Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz shows and a repeat of the movie, "Wizard of Oz."

NBC-TV will carry the bulkiest schedule. The "Hallmark Hall of Fame" series will offer Maurice Evans as star of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" (Feb. 9) and "Dial M for Murder" (April 25) Hallmark also seems set on a TV version of "Green Pastures." There's also a chance it may repeat "Cradle Song."

Pinocchio In October

NBC-TV has "Pinocchio" (Oct. 13) set with Mickey Rooney and Walter Slezak and "The Pied Piper of Hamlin" with Van Johnson and Kay Starr. Shirley Temple will make her debut as hostess and sometime star of 16 fairy tales that will open on Jan. 12.

NBC-TV has two anniversary musicals on the boards—Standard Oil (Oct. 13) will celebrate its 75th and General Motors (Nov. 17) its 50th). Texaco is backing a special one-shot tribute to Ed Wynn (Sept. 19).

NBC-TV has five opera dates in the offing including a two part "Die Meistersinger" in the spring. It's also blueprinting the Emmy and Oscar awards, three musicals from Las Vegas, conversations with such elder wise men as Picasso and Stravinsky and six specials each by Bob Hope and Jerry Lewis.

All in all, a pretty appetizing selection and one that should help spice the leaden fare of the regular season.

Singer Mel Torme Suffers Attack

MANCHESTER, England (UP)—Singer Mel Torme collapsed with a heart attack Monda. night while singing at a theater here but defied doctors orders and completed the program.

Torme, 31, had the first attack during the first performance as he sang the number that ushered him to fame, "Mountain Greenery."

A doctor treated him and then sat in the wings during the second show. Stage hands and the doctor helped Torme to his dressing room afterwards.

Skin Test Quickly Points to Allergy

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

If you have an allergy, let me urge you to get a skin test.

Except for certain cases of drug and food allergy, a skin test probably is the best, as well as the quickest, way of determining the allergens to which you are sensitive.

In fact, this is the most widely-used method of determining allergic sensitizations since the skin is involved in most such reactions.

There are four general methods of making skin tests. Just which should be used in your specific case, or indeed, whether you should have any type of skin test, must, of course, be determined by your doctor.

The patch test takes the longest time and can be used only with agents which penetrate the skin surface and with those possessing delayed action. Usually, it's used to determine allergies in cases of contact dermatitis.

With this test, an allergen is placed upon the unbroken skin and permitted to remain there for a minimum of 24 hours. When an allergen to which you are allergic is used, there will be a reaction on your skin.

In the scratch test, the antigen is placed over a scratch which breaks the outer layer of skin cells.

The puncture test is somewhat similar. Procedure in this test is to place a drop of antigen on the skin surface and then prick the skin with a needle.

A fourth method is the intracutaneous test in which a hypodermic needle is used to inject a small amount of the antigen solution under the outer layers of the skin.

The three latter methods are used to produce immediate allergic reactions on the skin.

By studying the severity of the various reactions, your doctor can determine the best method of treating your allergy.

These tests are quick, practically painless and generally pretty reliable. If you need such a check, get it right away. There's no use suffering if you don't have to.

Warn Against Undue Fear of Asiatic Flu

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —Records of the state Health Department show there have been only three proven cases of Asiatic flu in Pennsylvania thus far and there should be no "unnecessary fear" of the disease in the state, a three-member committee of the state Medical Society said Monday.

Dr. Pascal F. Lucchesi, of Philadelphia, chairman of the society's Committee on Preventive Medicine and Public Health, said there is no epidemic of the disease in Pennsylvania.

"However, there is the possibility of outbreaks of Asian influenza in areas of the United States, specially in over-congested districts," he warned.

Dr. Lucchesi said cases of the infection in the United States have been of a "mild and unalarming nature." He urged maximum of cooperation between county medical societies, state health agencies and national health groups in studying the spread of the disease.

Dr. Elmer G. Shelley, a committee member and president of the society, said a monovalent type vaccine now being manufactured will be ready within two months. He said two shots of the vaccine spaced three weeks apart will provide protection against the disease for the early winter months. He said a booster shot six months later will give yearlong immunity.

Dr. James V. Appel of Lancaster, a member of the state committee and the American Medical Association's Committee on Influenza, said the U.S. Public Health Service will establish priority groups. The program, he said, will be administered on a local basis by county medical societies.

The three - member committee held a special meeting in conjunction with the three-day Sixth Annual Public Health Conference underway at the Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Lucchesi said the theme of the committee meeting was to "allay the unnecessary fear in the mind of the public" regarding the disease which spread from China.

"The disease must not be ignored because of its mild character since large numbers of the population, as high as 20 per cent might, be temporarily incapacitated at one specific time by Asian influenza," he said.

He said that when the vaccine is available doctors will make certain that every patient will receive shots regardless of ability to pay.

State Health Secretary Berwyn F. Mattison speaking at the opening session of the conference Monday, recommended as "priorities" system when the vaccine is available.

The Pennsylvania Public Health Association, meeting with the conference, chose Mary Beam, a Landsdown nurse, as its president. Dr. Charles L. Wilbar, of Camp Hill, was named president-elect and Paul W. Purdon, of Philadelphia, vice president.

Maureen O'Hara On Stand Today; Denies Charges

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The Defense in the Confidential Magazine criminal libel trial today called on actress Maureen O'Hara to prove in court that she did not misconduct herself in a theater.

Miss O'Hara told newsmen Monday she was making a movie in Spain in November, 1953, the month that Confidential claimed in an article that she misbehaved in Grauman's Chinese Theater with an unidentified man.

She also showed newsmen a passport which indicated she was out of the country at the time the alleged incident occurred

But defense attorney Arthur J. Crowley said James Craig, former assistant manager of Grauman's who testified he witnessed the episode, could have been mistaken "a month either way."

Crowley said Craig was willing to undergo a lie detector examination and challenged Miss O'Hara to submit to such a test.

Confidential, which is being sued by Miss O'Hara and other Hollywood stars, introduced Craig as a witness in an attempt to show that articles published by the magazine are true and disclosed without malice.

Warm Air Ends Autumn Prevue

By UNITED PRESS

A southerly flow of warm air today ended a chilly prevue of autumn in the upper Midwest and northern New England.

The warming trend pushed across the upper Mississippi Valley eastward across the Great Lakes into New England.

The greatest warming was in the central plains where overnight readings ranged in the mid-70s as compared with temperatures in the low 60s the night before.

Widespread rainfall along the Atlantic Coast diminished during the night as a weather disturbance moved into the ocean. Skies remained cloudy, but rainfall was confined to the Virginia coast north to southern New York.

Webster Ladies Auxiliary Will Picnic Sunday

The Ladies Auxiliary of Webster met Thursday at the fire hall with Vivian Blick, president, in charge. Mary Bentley, chaplain, opened the meeting with prayer.

Reports were read by Anna Belle Maglet, recording secretary, and Gladys Bentley, financial secretary.

It was announced that the annual basket picnic will be held next Sunday beginning at noon at West Newton Sportsmen's Club. Games will start at 3 p. m. Ice cream and pop will be free.

It was also announced that the annual banquet will be held Sept. 21 at Twin Coaches.

At Thursday's meeting, the pigin-the-poke donated by Laura Boyce was won by Elizabeth Gilmer. Alice Zolak received a gift from her secret pal.

Hostesses were Ann Weir and Violet Strang. Hostesses for the next meeting will be Mary Vasko and Alice Zolak.

Joyce Bazilwich, of R. D., Belle Vernon, and Nancy Kopp, of Pricedale, have returned home from Penn State University where they attended the 15th Grand Assembly of the Rainbow Girls.

Miss Patti Jo Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grant, of Youngstown, Ohio, is visiting with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Williamson, of Charleroi.

Begins Training

MARIN, Spain (UP) — Prince Juan Carlos, believed slated to be Spain's next king, has begun training at Spain's naval academy here, it was announced today. The 19-year-old son of Don Juan, pretender to the throne, will study here until December. He recently was commissioned in the army after a two-year stint at the military academy as part of an intensive training program apparently preparing him to rule Spain.
